

35th Annual IBNS Meeting Cape Town, South Africa

The International Behavioral Neuroscience Society (IBNS) is dedicated to advancing understanding of the biological bases of behavior and fostering collaboration, communication, and mentorship among neuroscientists worldwide (www.ibnsconnect.org). Its annual meetings bring together researchers at all career stages to share discoveries, exchange ideas, and strengthen international networks in a friendly and inclusive atmosphere. To encourage broad participation, the IBNS offers several travel grant opportunities for students and early-career researchers, as well as significantly reduced membership and meeting registration fees for scientists from many countries, including across Africa.
